Prerequisites
Aims	This course is designed for first year students of political science, International relations, Journalism, Social policy and social work and European studies. The aim of this course is to give students an opportunity to acquire knowledge about the basic concepts and institutes of theoretical and positive legal science, which is very significant for understanding the basic concepts of law.
Learning outcomes	After passing the exam, students will be able to: • Define basic theoretical legal concepts such as the legal norm, a legal term, the legal system, legal order. • Familiarize with the most important legal and technical instruments, such as the assumption, legal fiction, evidence, action, appeal. • Distinguish and independently use de lege lata and de lege ferenda methods (normative, dogmatic (axiological and sociological) and comparative) of legal disciplines. • Analyze and acquire knowledge about the most important comparative legal systems today: continental, Anglo-Saxon, Sharia, Chinese, Japanese and Hindi. • Learn the basics of positive law disciplines: Constitutional, Business and Criminal Law, and prepare for further study of these and other legal disciplines during the future studies.
